Sport also emerged as a career opportunity, as well as an opportunity for pleasure, fitness and recreation. Talented, amateur sportswomen of earlier eras had carved a place on the world stage which came to be occupied by successors in the professional era. Fanny Durack, Dawn Fraser, Shane Gould and Susie O'Neill in swimming, Margaret Court and Evonne Goolagong in tennis, Marlene Matthews, Betty Cuthbert and ? in athletics, Heather Mackay in squash, Jan Stephenson and Karrie Webb in golf and whole teams of cricketers, hockey players and netballers.
